PRESIDENT ASKS CONGRESS FOR TAX OF $100,000,000

Delivers Message in Person Asking That Action Be Taken at Once to Relieve Threatened Treasury Deficit Caused by the War in Europe.

Says Loan Would Make Unjustifiable Demand on Money Market and Appeals to Patriotic People to Bear Burden.

Meeting of Ways and Means Committee Called by Underwood to Draft Tentative Measure.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—President Wilson personally addressed Congress in joint session today urging legislation to raise $100,000,000 a year additional revenue through internal taxes to meet a treasury deficit threatened by the conflict in Europe.

The President began reading his address promptly at 12:30 o'clock after loud cheers had subsided, and some members of the Southern delegations had given him a "standing ovation."

The President told Congress that he discharged a duty which he wished with all his heart he might have been spared, but which he performed without hesitation or apology, because of the danger in present circumstances to create a "moment's doubt as to the strength and sufficiency of the Treasury of the United States."

Promised Action to Be Taken.
While the Treasury, he said, could get along for a considerable period, pointed out the peril of the Government's withdrawing from the national banks approximately $75,000,000 of the Treasury balance deposited there; advised against the Government's borrowing money or selling bonds which would make "most untimely and profoundly patriotic public to bear the burden of a special tax to meet the unforeseen emergency."

Congress listened attentively to the address. Immediately upon its conclusion the legislative machinery was set in motion to carry its recommendations into effect. Chairman Underwood called a meeting of the Ways and Means Committee to perfect an internal revenue measure tentatively drafted in preliminary conferences. A bill will be introduced as soon as possible.

The President's Address.
The full text of President Wilson's address follows:

"Gentlemen of the Congress:
"I come to you today to discharge a duty which I wish with all my heart I might have been spared, but it is a duty which is very clear, and therefore I perform without hesitation or apology. I come to ask very earnestly that additional revenue be provided for the Government."

"During the month of August there was, as compared with the corresponding month of last year, a falling off of $16,829,838 in the revenues collected from customs. A continuation of this decrease in the same proportion throughout the current fiscal year would probably mean a loss of customs revenues of from $60,000,000 to $100,000,000. I need not tell you what this falling off is due. It is due, in chief part, not to the reductions recently made in the customs duties, but to the great decrease in importations; and that is due to the extraordinary extent of the industrial area affected by the present war in Europe. Conditions have arisen which no man foresaw; they affect the whole world of commerce and economic production, and they must be faced and dealt with."

Urging to Postpone Action.

"It would be very unwise to postpone dealing with them. Delay in such a matter and in the particular circumstances in which we find ourselves is the nation might involve ourselves in the most embarrassing and deplorable sort, for which I, for one would not care to be responsible. It would be very dangerous in the present circumstances to create a moment's doubt as to the strength and sufficiency of the Treasury of the United States, its ability to assist,

32 INDICTMENTS FOUND IN FOOD PRICE INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Thirty-two indictments were returned here today by a Federal grand jury after an investigation to determine whether food prices had been artificially increased here on pretext of having been caused by the European war.

Bench warrants were issued for all the indicted men, who are local commission merchants or produce dealers and ball were arranged for their appearance in court. No nationally known concern was indicted.

The indictment charges that they have been fixing prices every day on food stuffs by "ballots" or "suggestions" or verbal agreements and that the fixed prices have been circulated by printed circulars. The indictments are under the Sherman law and conviction carries a fine of $5000 or one year's imprisonment or both.

The grand jury investigation, which was under the direction of former Attorney-General McReynolds, was one of many begun by the Department of Justice immediately after President Wilson's celebrated letter to the Department of Justice directing a country-wide inquiry into whether certain dealers were not making the European war a pretext for raising prices.

enemy's line was near Criel, which is less than four hours run from Paris by train. In front of the enemy was the river with its bridges waiting to be blown up and still further in front was the army ready for a stubborn resistance. On the enemy's flanks were other armies of the allies, numerically inferior, but full of fight.

Last night the enemy's cavalry patrols were in action at Senlis, in the Department of the Oise, 32 miles northeast of Paris.

Previous to the German advance to Criel, there was a big battle at Compiegne in which the British took an heroic part. This battle took place Tuesday morning. The allies' left was brought around and to the southward on Monday. The headquarters of the left wing was at Aumale, under the French General Damade, the Moroccan hero. On Tuesday the left wing was well to the north of the line from Gournay-En-Dray to Beauvais and it has since closed in still more on the German arrowhead.

Telegraphing from Copenhagen, the correspondent of the Central News says Berlin newspapers received there describe the battle which was proceeding Wednesday between Rheims and Verdun as the greatest battle in history. Three-quarters of a million men were declared to be participating in the engagement.

Germans Near Chalons and Verdun;

Austrian 12-Inch Guns Aid the Kaiser

BERLIN, Sept. 4, by wireless to the Associated Press, via Sayville, L. I.—Berlin is decked with flags. Confidence prevails that nothing can stay the victorious advance of the Western armies. Maj. Morath, the military expert of the Tageblatt, expects that the armies of Duke Albrecht and the Crown Prince soon will reach Chalons and Verdun, which can be easily isolated without delaying the advance.

These towns have lost their strategic importance. Toul and Epinal (capital of the Department of Vosges) may delay the armies of Prince Rupprecht and Gen. von Heeringen, but this is unimportant. Raids in Upper Alsace are to be expected while Belfort is in the hands of the French, but this is without significance so far as the general result is concerned.

The Lokal Anzeiger points out that the taking by the Germans of Lafare and Laon almost without a blow means the capture of a position on the line where the population had been reassured and which line, the latest English papers received here asserted, would hold out long against the Germans.

It is now revealed that Austrian motor batteries, each consisting of two 12-inch guns mounted on auto trucks, have been co-operating with the German heavy artillery in the reduction of northern fortresses. The mobility and accuracy of the fire of these batteries is highly praised by headquarters and the special correspondents.

The decoration of the Order of the Iron Cross has been conferred on Aviator-Lieutenants Zahn and Rheinhardt. The aerial arm of the German forces probably will receive many such distinctions, as their achievements over a heavy fire have been remarkable.

Ghent Fears German Advance

LONDON, Sept. 4.

A dispatch to the Chronicle from Ghent says the people there are in a panic over the expected advance of the Germans on their city, which is indicated by the persistent presence of aeroplanes and scouts in its vicinity. It is believed the Germans now are at Termonde, 16 miles east of Ghent.

The Belgians have flooded the district around Malines to hinder the progress of the German artillery.

Zeppelin Flies Over Antwerp

ANTWERP, Sept. 4 (via Paris, 3 p. m.)—A Zeppelin airship appeared over the city at 3:55 o'clock this morning. It was greeted with a fusillade from the forts, but it is not known what damage was inflicted.

Meager Official Bulletin Says Old Torpedo Craft Struck a Mine.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Additions to the official communication regarding the torpedo gunboat Lindzell say:

"The missing include the skipper and four men of the Lindzell. Two men were seriously injured."

"The remainder of the crew of the Lindzell had been picked up by the Speedy before the latter struck a second mine."

"The Speedy was an old torpedo gunboat of 800 tons and prior to the declaration of war, she was engaged on fishery protection on the North Sea."

This additional information regarding the probable loss of the torpedo gunboat Speedy of the British Navy and of a merchant vessel of some kind is all the British censors have thus far permitted to come through.

ASQUITH OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR ARMY ENLISTMENT

tiles and making a heroic stand against overwhelming forces."

Louvain a Crime Against Civilization.

Continuing, Premier Asquith detailed the heroic efforts of the Belgian forces.

He mentioned the siege of Liege and enumerated countless outrages on the part of what he termed "bucaneering adventurers." He declared that the greatest crime against civilization was the sacking of Louvain.

The great problem now must be whether the reverse has shaken the morale of the Austrian army. If it has, the next battle may decide the course of the European war in the East.

As to a possible diversion toward Vienna, this becomes possible now that the fall of Lemberg opens passes in the Carpathians, but it is unlikely—for Vienna is off the road, and the success of the allies must be before Berlin. As to the possibility of the transport of Russians from Archangel to Ostend, it again is possible—an unexpected demonstration of what sea power means—but it remains to be proved, and until then hardly credible.

Only was responsible for the war, and that Power was Germany.

"Not a single colleague in the Cabinet repented the decision which had passed from one of diplomacy to one of honor," he declared.

"It would be a criminal mistake to under-estimate either the magnitude, the fighting qualities, or the staying power of the forces arrayed against the allies," the Premier went on. "It would be equally foolish and insensible to belittle our own forces, whether in resistance or attack."

He praised France and Russia as two of the greatest Powers who did not mean to separate themselves from Great Britain any more than Great Britain meant to separate herself from them.

He declared that if Great Britain were to play a worthy part in this war, she must enlarge the scale of her forces, increase her number, multiply many times her effective fighting power.

The Premier made the declaration that his object was to impress on the people the imperious urgency of this supreme duty.

Benny Lewis Assails Kaiser.

The Guild Hall meeting came to an end with speeches by Bonar Law, leader of the Unionist party in the House of Commons, and former Premier Balfour.

Law declared the key to peace or war had been in Berlin nearly a generation.

The head of the German Government had merely to whisper the word "peace" and there would have been no war.

"He did not speak that word," Law continued, "but drew the sword, and may the accursed system for which he stood perish by it."

Balfour said Great Britain had entered the war because honor and interests could not be divorced and because of a nation which strove for great power but which was utterly ignorant how to use it.

March of 2 Russian Armies on Berlin Is Explained by Expert

By the Military Expert of the New York Evening Sun.
Published in St. Louis Exclusive by Special Correspondent.

To understand the campaign which the Russians have undertaken, it is necessary to grasp first certain elementary facts, geographical, military and political, about the vast region in which the struggles waged by several millions of men, Russians, Germans and Austrians, are now taking place. These once grasped, the complexity of the dispute disappears.

To take the geographical first. If a line be drawn from Czernowitz, where the Russian center is not yet west of Warsaw—and the Russian territory is practically empty to the west—making advantage of this, German and Austrian forces have pushed into Poland, and penetrated to Lodz and toward Lublin. If they continue east, they must presently meet the Russian center, but if Russian success on their flanks continues, they must fall back to avoid disaster.

In a large way, then, it is possible to think of this enormous Russian army marching straight west toward Berlin, one to flanks on the mountains, the other on the sea, both banks in the enemy's territory, but the center still in Russia, and confronted by the invading force of Austria and Germany.

Vistula Fortified.

Having invested Koensberg, and taken Lemberg, the Russian flanks must now face two very serious obstacles.

Moving west in Eastern Prussia, they will presently come to the Vistula, which is defended by very strong fortresses from Danzig to Thorn, through Graudenz.

Moving west through Galicia, they will encounter the beaten Austrian army drawn up behind the Vistula and the Sava Rivers, their right resting on the Carpathians, their left on the Vistula, the center on the strong fortress of Presnyal. Meantime, their center will move west of Warsaw.

If they are victorious in Galicia, where their main forces are, and where the main Austrian force is, then all Galicia will be lost, the center of the Austro-German defense will have to retire, being outflanked, and the German flank on the Vistula will also be worthless, because Russia will be west of the Vistula with her center and left.

Line of Russian Advance.

Now, as to the political. If a letter "U" is drawn with its two upper points on Memel and Czernowitz, it will approximately mark the political frontiers—the semicircle will be Russian Poland, while north and east German Prussia and south and east Austrian Galicia will half surround the Russian Polish territories. At the western point to Berlin, that is, at the westernmost point in the semicircle, just east of Posen, the Russian frontier is not more than 200 miles from the German capital.

The natural expectation, then, might have been, in fact was, that Russia would at once send a huge army to Posen and on to Berlin. But for military reasons this was wholly impracticable.

Mobilized Far Back.

So long as the Germans held East Prussia, the Austrians held Galicia, the Germans, advancing south and north, respectively, would cut such a Russian advance off from Russian territory and envelope and surround it.

Because of this fact Russian mobilization began, not in Russian territory nearest Posen, that is nearest to Berlin, but far back, almost exactly on the line between Memel and Czernowitz, while the Russians left to Warsaw and the number of other fortresses west of this mobilization line to hold back any Austro-German attempt to occupy Russian Poland, which was defended only by covering troops.

Now, consider what has happened. First of all, we had a Russian advance toward Koensberg, which is just south of Memel; the investment of the city and the rapid flowing west of Russian troops moving on, with the Baltic on their flank, to clear East Prussia of German troops. Despite reverses about Allenstein, it appears that the movement is still going on.

Now, compare with the southern movement, it is a smaller operation, for Germany has really few soldiers to spare on the East.

Both Bound for Berlin.

Turning to the south, now, it will be noted that the great Russian army, which has met and defeated the Austrian army, driving it west and north, back of its final line of intrenchments along the San and Vistula Rivers, thus it will be seen that one army is moving toward Berlin from the northeast, with the Baltic on its right flank, through East Prussia, the other toward Berlin, with the Carpathians on its left. There remains the center. But this must conform to the wings, consequently it is easiest and simplest to think of a battle front from the Baltic to the Carpathians, moving steadily west toward Berlin, the distance between the two extremes shortening steadily.

Neither in East Prussia nor in Galicia has the front yet come squarely against the first line of defense, but in Galicia it seems to have soundly beaten an Austrian effort to check it in the field east of the San and Vistula rivers and about Leibnitz.

The great problem now must be whether the reverse has shaken the morale of the Austrian army. If it has, the next battle may decide the course of the European war in the East.

As to a possible diversion toward Vienna, this becomes possible now that the fall of Lemberg opens passes in the Carpathians, but it is unlikely—for Vienna is off the road, and that an enemy's fortress, with nothing but fog and foes around them, and then suddenly a swirl alongside, and up, you please, hops His Britannic Majesty's submarine E-4, opens its conning tower takes them on board, shunts up the channel, comes up to him instead of us. What a blessed relief!

"After the destroyers came the Fearless, and she stayed on the scene. Soon we found she was engaging a three-funnelled, the Mains, so off we started to the Arcthusa. Next, we followed her swimming survivors. Before the whaler got back, an enemy's cruiser came up and chased the Destroyer, who thus had to abandon their small boat. Imagine their feelings, alone in an open boat, without food, 35 miles from the nearest land and that an enemy's fortress, with nothing but fog and foes around them, and then suddenly a swirl alongside, and up, you please, hops His Britannic Majesty's submarine E-4, opens its conning tower takes them on board, shunts up the channel, comes up to him instead of us. What a blessed relief!

"Then we went west, while they went east. Just a bit later we heard the thunder of the enemy's guns for a space. Then fell silence, and we knew that was all.

Here's a Thriller.

CORONATION OF POPE BENEDICT WILL BE SUNDAY

Newly Elected Pontiff Will Deliver First Allocution Tuesday and Make Known Program of New Pontificate; Makes First Appointment.

CROWDS KNEEL AS HE APPEARS ON BALCONY

American Cardinals Reach Rome, but Fail to Gain Admission to the Vatican in Time for the Final Balloting.

ROME. Sept. 4.—Benedict XV, the new Pope, next Tuesday will deliver his first allocution, which will give to the world the program of his pontificate. His coronation will take place Sunday. The Pope's first consistory also will be held Tuesday, at which time he will consecrate the cardinals on Cardinal Anthony de Bello, archbishop of Valencia, and Cardinal Gualterio y Moncada, archbishop of Toledo, Spain. Both were created cardinals by Pope Pius X at the consistory last May.

The new Pope made his first appointment by naming Mgr. Parolin, nephew of the late Pope Pius X, to be canon of St. Peters.

Cardinals Gibbons and O'Connell, who only reached Rome shortly before noon yesterday, expressed their gratification at being the first Cardinals not participating in the conclave to render homage. The Pontiff embraced them tenderly and said he appreciated the efforts they had made to come to Rome for the conclave, at much personal discomfort.

Immediately after his election, the pontiff said he could not imagine how his frail being was capable of enduring the enormous weight of responsibility thrown upon his shoulders, especially at a moment when almost all the countries of Europe were stained with blood, while the wounds inflicted upon humanity also were inflicted on the church, and when countless victims of the war were being cut down.

America. Sept. 4.—Mr. Mary A. Jameson of Marine City, Mich., was elected president of the Ladies of the G. A. R. The Sons of Veterans' whose Charles F. Sherman of Mount Vernon, N. Y., commander in chief, and the woman's auxiliary elected Mrs. Bessie Wallace Bowser of Indianapolis, president. The Woman's Relief Corps elected Mrs. Sarah E. Fulton of Rochester, N. Y., president.

The G. A. R. will elect officers today.

David J. Palmer of Iowa, it is predicted, will be chosen commander in chief.

Although school days are near, there is no abatement of the planning by the little girls who compose the club will give a program that will be worth va-good children of St. Louis of entertainments and lawn parties to raise money to save the babies of the congested districts who must have free food and pure milk if their lives are to be saved. Other methods of raising money are being used by the children with a zeal and earnestness in keeping with the worthiness of the cause for which they labor.

It is very necessary that these efforts be continued. The battle against the babies' enemies is not yet won. The forces of disease and death have been held back, but they have not been routed. They are still pressing strongly against the defenses that have been erected by the Post-Dispatch Free Ice and Pure Milk Fund and its allies, the children of St. Louis. These forces, having been through the summer months, will press even harder during the early autumn, seeking to snatch away the little lives that have been preserved thus far.

But if the children are steadfast and, instead of relaxing their efforts, increase them, the battle will be saved and the babies will be saved.

Tonight's Entertainment. This is the night of the entertainment to be given by the Tower Grove Social Club at 1528 Tower Grove avenue. The little girls who compose the club will give a program that will be worth va-ly more than the price of admission. Refreshments will be served and a quilt made by the little girls will be sold. All who attend will have a good time, encouraging the children in the babies' philanthropy and help save the babies.

A very pretty entertainment for the benefit of the babies was given Tuesday evening on the lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry O. Hirsch, 6047 Wateman avenue, by a company of dear little girls who had been trained by Lucile Hirsch, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hirsch. The program consisted of fancy dances and songs and was given under the direction of little Miss Hirsch, without the assistance of any grown-ups. All who took part were under 10 years of age.

An Interesting Program. The lawn was brightly illuminated and decorated. A stage had been erected. The children performed their parts with the confidence and excellence of professionals. The program was as follows:

Fancy dance... Carmen Bernier
Guitar... Ruth Blake Hughes
Belt... Lucile Hirsch and Carmen Bernier
German song... Ruth Blake Hughes
Song... Carmen Bernier
Song... Ruth Blake Hughes
Song... Louise Bernier
Song... Marie Belitz
Song... Martha Schuyler

Song... Ruth and Myra Gram, Barbars and Martha Schuyler and Louise Bernier. The performance was witnessed by a good crowd in spite of unfavorable weather, refreshments were served. The proceeds, $14.25, have been turned over to the Fund.

Another Play Planned. Little Miss Dorothy Shannon, 15-year-old daughter of W. R. Shannon of 221 Plaza avenue, Webster Groves, is arranging another Mother Goose play to be given at the Shannon home Sept. 12. The parts have been assigned and rehearsals are in progress. Additional details will be given later.

Catherine Cervantes of 2907 Meramec street turned over yesterday 25 cents which she had earned at a lemonade stand.

Virginia Espy and Andrew Stevens of 6728 Smiley avenue earned 40 cents for the day by giving a penny show.

Margaret Willis of 8577 Nine place and Bessie Taylor of 5940 Wateman avenue earned $3 at a lemonade stand. They had previously earned $1.25.

COL. J. L. SMITH AGAIN WINS G. A. R. 10-MILE RACE

Veteran Gets Auto as Prize; Reports Loss of 8,878 Members in Year.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 4.—Col. J. L. Smith of Highland Park, Mich., yesterday afternoon successfully defended his title of champion long distance runner of the G. A. R. for the third consecutive time. The race was a feature of the annual encampment. Opposed by eight veterans, running in relays, the white-haired athlete finished a 10-mile grueling race in the lead and won a touring car, donated by a local automobile concern.

The report of Oscar A. Jones of Detroit, Adjutant-General, showed that on Jan. 1, 1914, there were 17,335 members, a net loss of 8873, as against a loss of 11,119 the previous year.

The new Pope made his first appointment by naming Mgr. Parolin, nephew of the late Pope Pius X, to be canon of St. Peters.

Cardinal Gibbons and O'Connell, who only reached Rome shortly before noon yesterday, expressed their gratification at being the first Cardinals not participating in the conclave to render homage. ITALY CONTINUES PLANS FOR PANAMA EXPOSITION Country Will Try to Disregard the War and Japan Increases Its Display.

ROME, Sept. 4.—The Government has decided to continue the construction of the Italian pavilion at San Francisco, to be used at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915, with the object of participating, if possible, regardless of the European war.

The decision was reached on the suggestion of Ernesto Nathan, former Mayor of Rome, who visited the United States in May and June of this year in the interests of Italian representation at San Francisco.

TOKIO, Sept. 4.—Announcement is made by Haruki Yamawaki, the Japanese Commissioner to the Panama Exposition, that Japan is proceeding with its preparations for participation in the exhibit. The exhibit will be of great interest, the dean of the Cardinals and other high church dignitaries, bower the chair where Cardinal Della Chiesa was seated.

He asked if the Cardinal would accept the pontificate, and upon an affirmative reply all the canopies above the Cardinals' thrones were lowered excepting that of Cardinal Della Chiesa.

In answer to the question of the dean of the Cardinals, the new Pope said he desired to take the name of Benedict XV.

Crowds See New Pope.

Monsignor Poggiani, assisted by other officials, recorded the act of election and the acceptance, and the members of the conclave then entered the sacristy with the Pope. The Pope was clothed in a flowing white robe, red sash and high stock, a broad red cravat. Cardinal Della Volpe placed over his shoulders a red stole, embroidered with gold: The Pope then mounted the throne to receive the homage of the Cardinals.

Crowds outside clamored to see the new Pontiff, and several of the Cardinals, including Cardinals Gibbons, Parley and O'Connell, tried to calm the assemblage, and obtain silence.

The excitement reached a climax when the Pope finally emerged. He was alone, and a flush held over the multitude. All knelt, and the Pontiff raised his hand, with three fingers outstretched, and imparted with melodious voice the apostolic blessing. A great cheer ran out as he turned to withdraw.

R. P. DICKERSON INDICTED IN GRAFT CASE, AS AGENT

Former Backer of Stanley Ketchel Accused in Police Inquiry at Springfield.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 4.—A special grand jury here returned an indictment today against R. P. Dickerson, wealthy ranchman, charging him with perjury. Dickerson is accused in the indictment of having given false testimony while a witness before the grand jury concerning alleged transactions between Chief of Police Hunter and proprietors of resorts here.

Hunter already is under indictment charged with having accepted bribes. Today's indictment alleges Dickerson acted as Hunter's agent.

Dickerson came into prominence in sporting circles in 1910 as the backer of Stanley Ketchel, champion middle-weight pugilist. It was on the Dickerson ranch near here that Ketchel was shot and killed by Walter A. Dipley, a ranch hand.

For Sallow, Blotchy, Rough or Greasy Skins

Some skins require constant grooming to keep them from becoming oily, muddy, blotchy or rough, or if such condition has developed, to overcome it in such chronic cases, particularly important to keep piling on cosmetics which clog the pores, collect dust and dirt, making the complexion worse than ever. It's a lot more sensible to use ordinary mercurized wax, which literally absorbs a bad complexion. Apply the wax like cold cream before retiring. If you're over-washful, wash it off, you'll wash away fine, flour-like particles of the ugly-looking residue. Repeat for a few days and you'll have an entirely new skin—soft, satiny, spotless and beautiful. Our own special brand of mercurized wax, procurable at any druggist, is all you'll need.

If you're too sensitive or flabby, here's the best possible remedy: Mix a pint of starch with one ounce of powdered axoite and use as a face bath. It works like a miracle, yet is entirely harmless—ADV.

A gardener discovered the body lying on the floor of a tool house, a revolver was found near the right hand.

Opdycke was a graduate of Harvard in the class of 1880, of which Theodore Roosevelt was a member. He was manager of the New York association for improving the condition of the poor and member of various clubs.

MILITARY COURT TO TRY 7 UNION MEN AT BUTTE

President of Mine Workers Still Sought—News Censor Is Appointed.

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 4.—Seven members of the Butte Miners Workers' Union, who were arrested yesterday on charges preferred by the Militia Commission, which now controls this city, were to be tried today by a summary court, organized by Maj. Jesse J. Boote, who has assumed the jurisdiction of Police Judge. Search was continued for Mackie McDonald, president of the union, who is reported to have fled 12 hours after the State troops arrived. With McDonald is J. E. Bradley, the union's vice-president.

Seven members of the Industrial Workers of the World, who were arrested in a raid by the police on their headquarters, were the first to be tried by the summary court. Four were found guilty of vagrancy, fined $10, and sentenced to six months in jail. Later the fine and sentence were suspended providing the men would leave Butte within 12 hours.

For the first time since July 4, the American flag yesterday flew from the city hall, which, in normal times, is presided over by a socialist administration. Provost Marshal Frank Couley, who has taken charge of the city hall, issued the order to raise the flag.

Lieut. Arthur A. Baker has been appointed news censor.

Of the 3200 miners employed on the day shift of the Anaconda Copper Mining Co., it was said that only 28 failed to report for duty yesterday. The closing of saloons is given credit by mine bosses for the large percentage of men reporting.

TWO MEN ARRESTED UPON A WOMAN'S STORY

She Charges That She Was Held Prisoner in a Basement for Six Hours.

Two men have been arrested and a third is being sought by the police as the result of a story related at the North Market Street Station last evening by Mrs. Nettie Kestner, 27 years old, who resides with her husband at 2235 Bismarck street.

Mrs. Kestner told the police that she was to 301 North Ninth street about 8:30 p. m. Tuesday to see a former admirer who had given her that number as his address. She said she was admitted to a dining room adjoining the saloon of George Sunders by a woman.

After she had been in the room half an hour, she said, three men entered, told her Mooney was not known in the neighborhood and pushed her into the basement. Mrs. Kestner said her screams attracted the attention of a fourth man, who cautioned her assailants to make less noise. She was held a prisoner in the basement, she said, until 3 o'clock the following morning.

The police, after a doctor found that Mrs. Kestner's physical condition bore out her story, arrested Harry Harry Sunders, 22 years old, a bartender, living at 1414 Penrose street, and Charles Bishop, 22, a millwright, of 3701A North Ninth street. They were identified by Mrs. Kestner and later released on common-law bail, furnished by State Senator Joseph H. Bissell and accepted by Judge Ben Clark of the Court of Criminal Correction. They denied the charge against them.

Mrs. Kestner's husband accompanied her to the police station when she made her complaint.

PRISONER SAYS HE TOOK GOODS TO SECURE WAGES

Man Arrested for Theft Denies Report That He Wish to Confess.

William G. Roe, 37 years old, of 1121 Walton avenue, who was arrested in connection with the disappearance of $90 worth of property from the Lakeview (IL) Military Academy, near Alton, denied today at police headquarters that he had committed a theft.

He said he was employed as gardener at the academy, owned by Rinaldo, the proprietor, and that he took a set of surgical instruments belonging to Dr. Woodson, one of the instructors. He said both men owed him money. According to Roe, it was his intention to hold the property until he got his money. He came to St. Louis, and on learning Rinaldo was investigating the disappearance of the property, Roe says he telephoned his former employer late Wednesday night to explain.

Roe was told to go to a conservatory of music which Rinaldo also conducts at 1089 North Grand avenue and shortly after his arrival there he was arrested at the instance of Rinaldo. Roe denied a statement given out that he was conscience-stricken and went to Rinaldo to confess.

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS PROPOSE A TRUCE BECAUSE OF WAR

Headquarters in Several States Turned Into Sewing Rooms for Red Cross Work.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Sewing machines have replaced typewriters in anti-suffrage headquarters in several States, headquarters of the national association, opposed to woman suffrage announced last night. Volunteers are busy under direction of the Red Cross turning out bandages and other materials for use on the battlefields of Europe. This action has been taken by the State organization of New York and Massachusetts. In response to the appeal recently issued by Mrs. Arthur Dodge, national President, and others are expected to follow this action.

The proposal has been made that a truce with the suffrage supporters be sought during the European struggle. Mrs. Dodge announced she would call for only $500, instead of $15,000, to fight suffrage in seven States this fall, as had been planned. The statement adds that even the smaller sum will not be sought if the suffragists do not force the fighting in contested territory.

Two Negro Robbers Get $12.57.

New Drug Store Crowded on Its Opening Day.

Hook's drug store, 616 Washington avenue, was crowded all of Thursday on its opening day with shoppers who had been attracted, according to John A. Hook, local manager of the concern, by the display advertisement the corporation had inserted in the Post-Dispatch.

The officials of the Hook store have decided to open another store at 307 North Broadway within the next 90 days.

The new St. Louis drug store is an offshoot from a $200,000 corporation of Indianapolis, where the company operates nine drug stores. The corporation was formed in April to spread a chain throughout the Southwest. All of these stores will be patterned after the one on Washington avenue, which has the most up-to-date modern filling cabinets to keep all drugs dustproof. In the new store may be found almost anything in the way of drugs, patent medicines and merchandise that officials of the company say are listed at the very lowest possible prices.

HOW I MADE MY HAIR GROW

Woman With Marvelously Beautiful Hair Gives Simple Home Prescription Which She Used With Most Remarkable Results.

I was greatly troubled with dandruff and falling hair. I tried many advertised hair-growing tonics and hair-dressing lotions, but they all failed; many of them made my hair greasy, so it was impossible to comb it or do it up properly. I think that many of the things I tried were positively injurious and from caution you against using any containing wood alcohol and other poisons. I believe in the value of the roots of the hair. After my long list of failures, I finally found a simple state is beyond doubt the most wonderful for the hair. I have ever seen. Many hair tonics have like effects, but obtain wonderful effects therefrom. I have found the following most important to the growth of the hair and for restoring the hair to its natural color, texture and form. Take four drops of oil of druff, giving the hair life and brilliancy. In first-class condition, keeping the scalp in first-class condition, makes the hair easier to comb and arrangement. This oil is good for the hair and has not only stopped the falling of his hair, but it has actually increased its growth, but it practically restored all of the hair to its original condition. To obtain these ingredients for making this wonderful preparation from almost any drug store.

Bay Rum, 6 oz.; Menthol Crystals, 2 oz.; perfume, 1 oz.; lavender, 1 oz.; water, 1 oz.; perfumed and drawn well into your favorite perfume. This, however, is not necessary. Apply night and morning thoroughly into the scalp.—ADV.

R. C. PATE DEAD; "GAMBLING KING" LOST BIG FORTUNE

Made Thousands in St. Louis in Day When "Lid Was Off," but Luck Changed.

Robert C. Pate, who made and lost a fortune in St. Louis as a horse owner, race-track promoter, bookmaker and gambling house proprietor, died at his home, 1908 La Salle street, yesterday.

Though he had long been suffering from cancer of the tongue, said to have been caused by excessive cigar smoking, the immediate cause of death was bronchitis. He was 75 years old. In recent years his main financial dependence has been a pension paid to him by the Government in recognition of his service as a Union officer in the Civil War. He was Captain of the Thirty-seventh Indiana Infantry.

Anson G. Hart, who was a friend of Pate, impeded Pate's speech to such an extent that what he said was understood only by his wife, who nursed him through his long illness and was at his bedside when he died.

Known as "Gambling King."

In the old, wide-open days of St. Louis, prior to the early '80s, Pate was known throughout the Southwest and South as the "gambling king of St. Louis." Laws were not stringent in those days and the privilege of running gambling games was purchasable. To further his interests along this line, Pate became active in politics and became influential in that it was common gossip that he controlled many public officials. In consequence his gambling ventures were seldom molested.

He was a power in the days of Pool Alley, when the bookmakers infested the narrow by-ways between Seventh and Eighth streets, Olive and Pine streets. For many years one of the largest of the pool rooms there had a flamboyant sign over the door proclaiming it as "Pate's Turn Exchange."

At one time Pate was reported to have several hundred thousand dollars, but he lost most of the money in race track ventures in St. Louis and Mexico after gambling houses, which he controlled, were closed by the Johnson anti-gambling law in 1882.

There were nearly 60 indictments against him when he gave up the fight in St. Louis and went to Mexico to open a race track. For several years after this he continued to operate race track pool rooms in St. Louis. He was financially interested in the Kinloch and Union race tracks, which were put out of business by the repeal of the Breeders' Law when Joseph W. Folk was Governor.

When Pate went to Mexico after being put out of business in St. Louis, he obtained from President Diaz a concession to operate a race track. He afterwards told friends he lost several hundred thousand dollars there.

Came Here in 1887.

As an added attraction at his Mexican track he once pitted an African lion against a fighting bull. The animals fought to a finish in a steel cage in view of a large audience. The bull won. Pate had bet heavily on the lion.

Pate was the son of a wealthy farmer. He ran away from his home at Dillsbury, Ind., when 10 years old, and never returned. Until about 20 years old he lived with an uncle at Lawrence, Ind. He came to St. Louis in 1887. After conducting gambling games on steam-boats he opened gaming houses in St. Louis.

He married Miss Lollie Fandree at Hamilton, O., in 1888. She died two years later. In 1875 he married Miss Mary A. Cullinan of St. Louis. Robert Pate, a son by the first marriage, and Mrs. Shelle Turner, a daughter by the second, are living. Three other children died.

Wanted to Meet Old Friends.

Shortly before the opening of the World's Fair Pate returned to St. Louis from Mexico and planned to open a gambling house, thinking the city would be wide-open during the fair. He guessed wrong. After he had fitted up luxurious gaming rooms at 112 South Fourth street the police backed up a battery of moving vans and carted away the gorgeous furniture. Pate's guess had been as wrong as when he backed the African lion against the Mexican bull.

Pate and his wife in recent years have lived in rooming houses in various parts of town.

Mrs. Pate told a Post-Dispatch reporter that in his last illness Pate expressed two desires. One was to go back to Mexico and again enter the horse-racing game there and the other was to go to the Laclede Hotel and meet friends of other days who once gathered there. She had been planning to hire an automobile and take him to the Laclede.

Twenty-five years ago Pate and his family lived in what was considered one of the finest St. Louis suburban homes. It was on the Baden bluffs overlooking the river, north of the city limits. This was a magnificent building by D. A. January, was said to have cost more than $100,000, with the furnishings. Pate was a lavish entertainer there in the days of his prosperity.

Paid $20,000 for Home.

Maj. Charles G. Gonter, 30 years old, who knew Pate in the gambler's prosperous days, was one of the old acquaintances whom Pate longed to meet at the Laclede Hotel. Maj. Gonter told a Post-Dispatch reporter of Pate's purchase of the January farm in Baden. Jim Robinson, a famous circus man and noted bareback rider owned the estate and had transformed it into a training ground for his horses. Pate visited the place as Robinson's guest. He bought it from Robinson for $20,000 in cash.

A few days later Pate took his wife to the Robinson estate. After a tour of inspection Mrs. Pate signed and expressed a wish that she could have such a home.

"You have my dear," said Pate. "This place is ours," and he showed her the deed of sale. Later he mortgaged the place and lost it in financing his Mexican racing venture.

DOUBLE VICTORY LANDS GIANTS IN FRONT OF BRAVES

McGraw's Team Regains Batting Stride, Getting 24 Hits in Two Games.

BRAVES FACE TROUBLE

Doubleheaders Confronting Pennant Contenders Should Prove Undoing.

Keep one optic glued on those Giants! They took the offensive again yesterday, after a short sortie into second place, and now are pacing the field with better prospects of staying there than they have had for two months.

Theirs is a tradition of staying to batting form in the New York camp Thursday. In two games against the Superbas, opposing such pitchers as Ragon and Atchison, the Giants combed 24 hits, winning the first game, 6-2, and the second encounter, 7-2. This double conquest, and Boston's annihilation, 7-1, last night, has put the Giants in the lead, put the Giants up where they probably will stay.

If McGraw's club hits anything like its normal pace it will win, going away.

The doubleheaders which now await the Braves should prove too much for Stalling's hurlers, while McGraw's men, if hitting, will run wild at Fenway Park.

The Giants have been in a camp too long, and are due now to make up the laggard's pace which it assumed on the Western trip, and having had the experience of three grueling games against the Giants, and big their fourth successive pennant.

George Burns was the hitting hero of the Giants. Three safe taps, one a home-run, and another a double out of eight times at bat, gave him the swat honors. Doyle and Murphy had three hits each, the ball. That's the class of the team.

McGraw put Red Murphy in right field for the finish, and the first game, and the club's evergreen, Jim left field, in the second game. Red grabbed two hits out of four times at bat.

Alex Has Braves Looed.

The Braves couldn't do a thing to Alexander until the ninth inning, when the "Iron Man" let down. They got him for four runs, but were almost with ease. Evers, who has been on the sick list for two days, broke into the game after pinch hitters had forced Whited out.

Braxton Mayer, a perfectly good side-arm pitcher, is slated to oppose either Hess or Crutcher. A defeat today will minimize the Braves' chances of getting a record crowd out for the morning game at Fenway Park, Boston, Monday, at 8:30. Stalling's trouper return home to play the Giants.

Credit Due to Cards Even Though Pennant Hopes Die Team Shows Big Improvement

Huggins Lifted Taitler of 1913 Into a Contending Position, in One Season, Gaining More Points Over Last Year's Record Than the Boston Club.

By W. J. O'Connor.

It is conceded now almost by all the railbirds that the Cardinals have forfeited their last chance for the pennant. Six successive defeats suffered by the protégés of Huggins in the past six days have reduced the local club to such circumstances that there is some fear felt about the team's ability to remain in the first division.

From now on it will be a battle to stay ahead of the Pirates and Phillies, both of whom are showing signs of rejuvenation.

This has been a peculiar year in the National League. "Class" has been sadly lacking, but the League is so evenly balanced that there is little to choose between the top and the bottom club in the middle, Cincinnati, now a tail-end, has found it anything but difficult to holdwink the pace-setters, and Boston's annihilation, 7-2, this double conquest, and Boston's annihilation, 7-1, last night, has put the Giants up where they probably will stay.

If McGraw's club hits anything like its normal pace it will win, going away.

Terriers Game, But Lose When Pitcher Cracks

Team Rallies in Sixth and Ties Packers, but Is Beaten in the Twelfth.

The second game of the Terrier-Pack-er four-game series went to Kansas City, 12-9, after 12 innings of play. Fielder Jones brought back into play his art of maneuvering his men, or, in other words, using every player he had on the bench to win the ball game. Sixteen Terrier names graced the box score, four of them pitchers, several pinch hitters, and a few extra basemen. Although they were defeated, the Terriers put up a great fighting struggle, playing an uphill game from the start.

Stoval's man hit Keupper and Herbert hard in the first and third innings and six runs went to the visitors before the locals had scored a run. Kansas City had a few clean hits brought on in the fourth, fifth, and sixth, but the score was brought to 7-7 when the Packers counted another in the eighth, when Cressel, who had come in the eighth, hit Packard at all corners of the mixed doubles tourney. The scores were 1-1, 7-7.

Who cares a rap if Helene Zim-She's-Ever-in-Jag? What's talk about the war?

Or if the Boston Beane trim The tribe of Paris or Berlin?

Let's have some news about the war And what they kill each other for.

How puerile, profane and flat A box score does appear!

Who cares a hoot about the bat, when the club is in the hole?

Who cares a hoot about the war If Paris is in a seige is locked And if the Kaiser has been Hoched?

How fans can't find for such a game I can't understand:

When Mars with sword and brand of fire Is striking through the land.

What's that? We're forging to the fore? Good gosh a-mighty, what's the score?

Also the Browns.

Well, we got it the Wabadas, yet, ain't it?

"Steamboat" Williams struck a snap.

Today is Red Cross day. As there should be but one game, the Pirates don't give us the double cross, like they did yesterday.

But they couldn't have done that to the Wabadas!

The Cards were shot to pieces by a Pirata's canon ball.

Tell me, how can you hurry with nurses day and night?

The Cardinals were worsted in a long and bloody fight.

ATHLETIC CLUBS OF THE COUNTRY JOIN CONFERENCE

Organization Promoted by Tom Watts of M. A. A. Is Practically Assured.

MEETING AT CLEVELAND

East and West Unite in Favoring Plan to Hold Annual Contests.

The newest organization in national athletic circles is the Athletic Club Conference, a league of 10 of the best-known clubs in the country. It was formed last summer, and the conference is now being completed, the idea having been originated by Thomas L. Watts Jr., chairman of the Missouri Athletic Club, several months ago.

Watts' idea was to combine a number of the Western clubs into a team which could then run similar to the college conferences. The suggestion was immediately received with favor by the Eastern clubs, and the conference met in Cleveland to arrange the details. Although it was at first planned exclusively for the West, several Eastern clubs have heard of the idea, and asked to be admitted.

Representatives of eight clubs assembled at Cleveland, in a discussion meeting. The clubs represented were the New York A. C., Columbus A. C., Pittsburgh A. C., Kansas City A. C., St. Louis A. C., Atlanta A. C., Milwaukee A. C. and Missouri A. C. The Illinois A. C. and Chicago A. C. were unable to send anyone, but have recently agreed to attend the meeting in favor of this movement, and would readily join in it. It is thought that after the conference is well under way, that other conferences will join with every section in the country in enlisted.

National Club Meets Planned.

Tom Watts Jr. is chairman of a committee of arrangements that is at present at work drawing up a constitution. At the assembly it was decided that the conference should set up its own laws to govern all manner of various branches of athletics, indulged in by the club's league. Also to hold annual meetings of the conference, and to have local and conference meets in the different cities of the country. A standard program of events and system of rules will be adopted.

The sports indulged in will be billiards, bowling, trap shooting, tennis, automobile, hand ball, racquets, squash, checkers, chess, golf and track and field games.

Several clubs at the first suggestion were shy in joining, but it is felt that the conference might prove unfavorable to the Amateur Athletic Union and might not regard its rules and regulations. However, the new committee, of which W. V. Perry, president of the A. A. U., attended the meeting, and was heartily in favor of it.

ST. LOUIS BOY STARTS ON LONG CANOE TRIP

Fred W. Schwartz, a student at Washington U. and known in aquatic circles as one of the promising young swimmers of the Missouri A. A., he coming from a family of famous swimmers, has notified his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Schwartz of Westminister place, that he has started on a canoe trip from Three Lakes, Wis., down the Mississippi River to the Gulf of Mexico. He will be gone about three weeks.

"STEAMBOAT BILL" WILLIAMS

may have been loaded down with stuff, but blew up so quickly no one can claim to have seen him sink quickly, going down by the head, due to a rush of ivory to the front.

The Champion Upset.

E. D. MAGINN, of no good racing reputation, would have eight horse owners on the circuit if his entries in any event under his eagle eye performed as have the National League baseball contestants. The records and instances in the running have been too many to be related. The records show a series of breakaway performances in which clubs beat rival clubs for which they figured to be easy picking.

Schwartz has been an assistant this year at Minne-Wonka, and will be accompanied on the long paddle by W. R. McDonough of Montclair, N. J., who also was identified with the swimming activities of the Naps.

The explanation is not crookedness—just sheer want of class, consistency and ability to maintain an average performance over an extended period of time.

That's the reason the Boston club is able to make a fight for the flag. It's not a great team, but it's a steady team in selling-plater company.

Watching the Main Chance.

CONNIE MACK diplomatically says that we are bound to respect a club that can jump from last place to first in two months. Sure we do. Connie is not bound to bet on it.

The Bostonians have the same chance to beat the Mackmen that the Giants have—which is a known quantity, we believe.

He's Good at It.

HERMAN FENSKO, a veteran of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, is going back to Germany. The only thing that he was once with the Cardinals is a greater desire. Herman is going abroad this time probably to be custodian of imperial diamonds, in case the Russians take Berlin.

DIAMOND GLINTS

Infielder Chapman, of the Naps, appears equally at home at either side of the keystone sack.

Pitcher Eddie Plank of the Athletics had a recordless shutout game than any other pitcher in baseball. He has blanked his opponents 29 times.

Despite the carelessness of his forfathers, who inflicted the handicap of such a name upon him, Wamborgans, of the Naps, appears to be a pretty sharp shortstop.

The few months he has been in the states have made Emilio Palmero, the Cuban, a favorite with the English language. When he first came to the United States Emilio didn't know a word.

Cy Pies is one of the luckiest pitchers on the New York team. Whenever Cy goes on the mound the team goes along and makes runs for him. In this respect Jack Warhop is one of the unluckiest.

The Players' Fraternity announced another victory had been won by John Holden of the New Yorks was declared free agent after an appeal was made to the commission. Very important, isn't it?

Connie Mack is of the opinion that John Holden of the Washington club is one of the best catchers in baseball, possibly the best.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Kid Huggins the Whole Show.

MANY explanations have been advanced accounting for the success of the Cardinals, this season, and all have been open to objection; but there's a single, indisputable reason for the team's downfall—the absence from the fray of Miller ("Kid") Huggins.

Feds Are Off Koney.

THE Federal League is off Eduardo Konechy, because he once turned down a $10,000 offer to manage the local minor team of the Cardinals. The machine is without its steering gear, with Huggins missing. It rarely cracks around the diamond with little power, and no offensive Cards.

So far, the League club is worse.

Some of the right smart first basemen in the National are about ready for the big leagues now, if the Fed's want him.

In view of these facts talk of the "banning" of Huggins, which has been a theme under discussion for a year or so, seems about as appropriate as asking Cisco Dolan what he intends doing with his world's series money.

The report that Koney was all in, which circled the grapevine route for a time, seems ridiculous. Koney is a young man. For the Pirates, he still drives fast. His contract has not yet lapsed, and since his arrival here Koney is still a good enough first baseman for anybody's club, if things are going right.

So far, the League club is worse. Koney is improving, after several years "preping" in the National. He is about ready for the big leagues now, if the Reds want him.

In view of these facts talk of the "banning" of Huggins, which has been a theme under discussion for a year or so, seems about as appropriate as asking Cisco Dolan what he intends doing with his world's series money.

GRANDSTAND managers are not the only ones who make mistakes. The baseball scouts error continually in several times larger than their own. If he sends a live one it's only after several dead ones have kept up the average.

DETECTIVE EFFORT OF MAYOR'S SON PROVES COMEDY

Clarence Kiel Orders Beer at Priester's Park on Sunday, Then Calls Police.

"OH," SUCH A TASTE
Patrolman Samples Liquid, Expresses Disgust and Manager Explains It's "Near Beer."

An amusing comedy in which Mayor Kiel's 12-year-old son, Clarence, had a leading part, Sunday night, at Priester's Park, Grand Avenue and Meramec street, became generally known today at the city hall, although no police report was made. The story, as obtained from F. M. Priester, Harry Koeln, a brother of Collector Ed Koeln, and Policemen Krueger and Bradshaw is this:

Young Kiel, accompanied by a man named Burton and two young women, entered Priester's Park shortly before midnight. The young men asked to be served with beer. The waiter informed them that no beer could be served on Sunday.

After they had insisted the waiter went away, he soon returned with a bottle containing a dark colored liquid.

Calls Police to Park.

Young Kiel left the table and went to a telephone. The police at the other end of the line talked to a man who said he was Henry Kiel, which is the Mayor's name. Kiel said he wanted policemen sent immediately to Priester's Park. Policemen Krueger and Bradshaw were given the assignment. Young Kiel met them at a corner near the park and, according to the policemen, told them that if they did not arrest Priester he (Kiel) "would get their job."

When they entered Priester's young Kiel hurried to the table and took three bottles, which had not been opened. He handed them to the policeman as "the evidence" and demanded the arrest of Priester. Priester, Koeln, who was present, and young Kiel's party accompanied the policemen to a nearby substation.

One of the policemen opened one of the bottles and tasted it. He hurriedly put it down with an exclamation: "No more for me. That's not beer."

It had proven to be a near-beer, containing no alcohol. The police refused to arrest Priester, and young Kiel apologized, and all immediately began requesting that no publicity should be given the incident.

Priester was at first inclined to telephone the Mayor of his son's escapade, but Koeln persuaded him otherwise.

Koeln, Priester and the policemen were reticent when asked about the matter today, though they admitted the prima facie details.

Young Kiel Had Been Elected. Priester said that the liquid served looks like beer, foams like beer, and, when very cold, tastes almost like beer."

Koeln, who manages the motorordom at Priester's, said that young Kiel had been ejected from Priester's several times during the summer for boisterous conduct. Koeln said: "I guess he thought he would get even."

Efforts to reach young Kiel were unsuccessful. He has a job as inspector in the Sewer Department, and was said to be out at work.

Mayor Kiel said he had not seen his son since Sunday, and that he had heard nothing of the affair, but his manner indicated he was not surprised at the affair.

JEWELERS POST REWARD FOR ARREST OF AGENT

Wife of Missing Man Admits She Pawned Diamond, Part of $5000 Stolen Gems.

A reward of $100 was posted today with the police by the Weidlich Jewelry Co. for the arrest of its former confidential agent, John Little, who is charged with the theft of $2150 in cash and $5000 worth of diamonds.

Mrs. Stella Little, his wife, admitted today that she pawned a $300 diamond ring given her by her husband and which has been identified by the jewelry company as part of the stolen jewels. In pledging the ring with the Van Raalte Loan Co., Mrs. Little used the name of her former servant, Sarah Hack.

Little disappeared from his home, 2801 Winnabago street, a week ago. His wife followed him to Kansas City and returned to St. Louis, and when arrested said her husband had failed to meet her and that she did not know her whereabouts.

Mrs. Little's three children, by a former marriage, who were taken into custody with her, were transferred this morning from the matron's room at police headquarters to the House of Detention. Their father, Burton Allison of Hutchinson, Kan., has been notified of their predicament.

The police today submitted their evidence to the Circuit Attorney in an effort to obtain an information charging Mrs. Little with receiving stolen property of grand larceny.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN WHO ARRIVES FROM GERMANY

MRS. KREISMANN AND SONS HOME FROM EUROPE

Wife of Former Mayor Was Visiting in Germany When War Began.

Mrs. Frederick H. Kreismann of 483 McPherson avenue, who was in Munich, Germany, when the war began, reached home last night, accompanied by her sons, Golden and Paul Whitman. They had been abroad since June.

Mrs. Kreismann said to a Post-Dispatcher today that she was so overwhelmed by the sorrow and distress and loss of life in Europe that the slight hardships to which she was subjected were not worth mentioning. She was visiting relatives and was supplied with money and shelter and was in no danger. She and her sons took their own time in getting out.

They made their way to Rotterdam and sailed from there on the Ryndam. The only annoyance they suffered was the poor transportation facilities through to the seaport and the incarceration of officials to which they had to submit. The German government, Mrs. Kreismann said, are the least affected by the war. Their farms have not been disturbed and they are going ahead with the harvesting of their crops.

One of the policemen opened one of the packages and tasted it. He hurriedly put it down with an exclamation: "No more for me. That's not beer."

It had proven to be a near-beer, containing no alcohol. The police refused to arrest Priester, and young Kiel apologized, and all immediately began requesting that no publicity should be given the incident.

FRENCH SOLDIERS MAY WEAR SHOES MADE IN ST. LOUIS

Firm Here Virtually Closes Deal Reported to Be for About 1,000,000 Pairs.

French soldiers in battle will wear St. Louis-made shoes, if a deal pending between the French Government and the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. is clinched within the next two weeks.

The French Government has placed an order for a large shipment of shoes, said to be a million pairs, but the shoe manufacturers refuse to risk the moratorium. They insist the French Government must deposit in a bank money which the company can obtain when delivery is made, and negotiations toward this end are said to have been virtually completed.

Although Jerome E. Roach, in charge of the foreign department of the shoe company, refused to discuss the deal, the shoe trade learned a Hamilton-Brown official was in Paris when war was declared.

His presence became known to French officials, who opened negotiations with him to supply 1,000,000 pairs of shoes to the army. The deal was taken up by cable with the house in St. Louis, and it is reported, was closed, with the provision that cash for payment must be put up in bank.

American manufacturers refuse to ship goods abroad unless immediate payment in cash is guaranteed, as countries at war have declared a moratorium postponing the payment of debts. Manufacturers insist money must be deposited to their credit in a bank from which they can obtain it when delivery is made.

The Hamilton-Brown company is said to be prepared to make immediate delivery of a part of the order, a large stock of the kind of shoes wanted being on hand.

Large Sale to Mexico.

The company last week made a sale to Provisional President Carranza of Mexico, for shoes for the Mexican army. The amount of the order was not made known, but it made the total sale of shoes to the Carranza forces by Hamilton-Brown in the past six weeks $25,000.

An agent of Carranza was in St. Louis last week making purchases. He closed a deal with the J. B. Sickles Saddlery Co. for saddles, spurs and equipment to the amount of $3,000. An officer of the saddlery company refused to go into details regarding the purchase, except to say that the money in payment for the goods had been deposited and was available to the company on delivery of the goods.

There have been large sales by St. Louis manufacturers to Mexican forces. In the past they have bought cheap goods, but the recent order, it is stated, is for goods of excellent quality.

The persons who believe in benefiting by the knowledge and experience of others are what "carries" as the Scotch say. They will let the experienced agent handle their property, and will direct that he keep it listed in the Post.

NEW CASE OF TYPHOID AT THE CITY HOSPITAL

Physician Still Unable to Find Source of Infection That Attacks Employees.

Another case of typhoid fever among employees of the city hospital was reported this morning. The victim is Anna Kubicki, a maid. In all 20 employees of the hospital are now sick with typhoid fever, while the hospital authorities are vainly endeavoring to ascertain the source of the infection.

Most of the employees there are 15 patients in the hospital having typhoid fever. Thomas Dowd, 47 years old, of 240 Bismarck street, died at the city hospital yesterday afternoon from what is believed to have been typhoid. He was received Monday night, and the symptoms appeared to be those of typhoid.

Erratic Zim Has Cost Cubs Pennant Chance

As long as one of its best players happens to be the most rattle-brained tosser in the majors, Chicago is placed at a disadvantage, although up with the leaders.

The escapades of Heine Zimmerman have been many this season, and they have cost the club dearly. Suspensions and fines have been almost a weekly occurrence.

Zimmerman is the Mad Mullah of baseball. When he isn't fighting with an umpire or an opposing player, he is fighting with one of his own men.

Heavy fines haven't curbed Zimmerman's hellionics, disposition. In the last two weeks he has been fined $200, but he will continue to do as he pleases just the same.

The Cubs have a fine chance for the pennant, but the odds are against them winning it because of the erratic Zimmerman, who, judging from past experiences, will not be able to restrain himself should somebody cross him in any of the important sets of games Hank O'Day's men have yet to play this season.

Eddie Collins Can't Solve Walter Johnson

Eddie Collins is undeniably a great batsman, but his record would be a poor one if he had to face Walter Johnson daily. Eight years Collins has been hitting against Johnson, and during that time he has been at bat 113 times and made 16 hits for the unwholesome average of .144. One day some years ago Collins hit a homer and single off Johnson and then went along for nearly a year before he got another hit.

City Hospital Babies.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I am a frequent visitor in the maternity ward of our city hospital, and am impressed by the great number of women who are there who have neither clothes for their babies nor money to get them. While the hospital does furnish some clothing, it can in no way supply the demand. So I appeal to you mothers who have anything in the way of clothing for very young babies to send it to the city hospital. There is a dear little social worker who gives all her time to these mothers, many of them unmarried, who sadly need a friendly adviser and someone to give them courage and strength to face the world after they leave to make their hard way.

Mother love lies in every woman's heart, yet often these poor unfortunate crush this very love because of the disgrace and burden they feel the coming of the child will bring. The little social worker strives and usually with success, to create an interest in the child sufficient to make the mother feel that she must work for it. She is given its little dresses to make, and as long her heart is softened, and I know that material for such would be a welcome and wise gift. When mothers go out, the social service department has made the way easy by placing the babies where they will be cared for while the mother works for its keep; find homes for mother and child and employment; look after the interests of the deserted wife and follow all the babies, seeing that they have the proper care and food.

I hope that the kind, charitable people of this city, who have done so much for those in need will again respond most generously to this request for help for the babies.

A SOCIAL WORKER.

Reclaim the Des Peres.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Could not you enlist the support of Park Commissioner Davis and advocate the damming of the River des Peres and using it as an adjunct to the fish hatcheries? It could be dammed up and a sufficient supply of water furnished by the city in periods of drought to keep it in a sanitary condition and in severe storms, should the hatches overflow, it would be well stocked with fish and certain days could be made fishing days for the benefit of the people. In addition it could be furnished with artificial cascades, bathing pools and "ice swimming holes." Bronx Park has a small stream flowing through it which enhances the beauty of the surroundings.

This plan would be feasible and the cost would be small in proportion to the pleasure and attractions it would add to the surroundings and our posts of the future would sing of the River des Peres as "a thing of beauty and a joy forever."

THOMAS J. CURRAN.

"War's Melting Pot."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have your interesting editorial in today's Post-Dispatch under the head, "War's Melting Pot." You point out that Germany is a Protestant country fighting with Austria, a Catholic country, and show that Protestant England is with Catholic Belgium, and with Orthodox Russia, and Greek Catholic Servia and Catholic and agnostic France, Catholic Portugal and Shintoistic Japan. You say then: "Progress in this direction once gained by the works will not be lost." The Catholic fights for his country. This is now patent to the beholding world. The war proves Catholic soldiers fight as bravely for Protestant Germany, or Protestant England, as for Catholic Austria. Thus it is that designing and secret enemies, which has assailed the Catholic Church and Catholic priesthood, is put to shame. In view of the loyalty and heroism displayed by the Catholic soldiers of said non-Catholic countries, this is worthy of mention, not because it is news to anybody who is of average intelligence, but for the reason that through our United States post office, our country has been for the past two years overrun by infamous literature and filled with malignant lies against the loyalty of Catholics to their country. That is why I mention this.

Now, much of the good that you speak of may come about as you say it will, by the commanding of the soldiers, but permit me to add that the things not subject to the "Melting Pot of War," and one of them is the religious faith of a Catholic. That can never be dissolved by the hardships of war—the heat of battle by the greatest armories; or by the crags of mountains or the surging waters of all the seas crimsoned with their blood—would not dissolve that! Nor "desires" abode that is not of earth!

BENJ. R. BREWER.

WANTED—$100,000,000.

Congress today will consider the President's recommendation to raise $100,000,000 by taxes to make up the falling off in customs receipts from European imports. It is no mere offhand judgment to say nothing is easier.

Fortunately, the condition of the country, and our foreign relations, are not such as those which prompted Thomas Jefferson, just one hundred years ago, to write to President Madison:

The report of the Committee of Finance proposes taxes (war) to the amount of twenty millions. This is a dashing proposition. But, if Congress pass it, I shall consider it sufficient evidence that their constituents generally can pay the tax. No man has greater confidence than I have in the spirit of the people, to a rational extent. Whatever they can, will. But without either market or medium, I know not how it is to be done. All markets abroad, and all at home are shut to us; so that we have been feeding our horses on wheat. Before the day of collection, bank notes will be but as oak leaves; and of specie, there is not within all the United States, one-half of the proposed amount of the taxes. * * * Our position, with respect to our enemy, and our markets, distinguish us from all other nations; insomuch, as a state of war with us annihilates an instant all our surplus produce, on which we depend for many comforts of life. Today a hundred millions is relatively a bagatelle, in a nation at peace and unblockaded, whose internal wealth and resources have developed a thousandfold.

The pastoral services of the new Pope seem to have been brief. Very soon after his ordination he entered the papal diplomatic service and a few years later we find him filling minor offices in the great bureaus and departments of the Vatican at Rome. His abilities impressed themselves on the late Cardinal Rampolla when Secretary of State, who made him assistant secretary. Many will see in the election of the favoritism a triumph of those who desired Rampolla as head of the church, a desire which survived defeat in 1903 until the great Cardinal's death last winter.

The circumstances under which the choice has fallen on Chiesa will assuredly become memorable in church history—almost all Europe embroiled and Italy itself wavering between war and peace.

Even the medieval war storms that increased so greatly the burden of the papacy were not as terrific and widespread.

As he was Archbishop of Bologna, it is easy to see why the new pontiff takes the title of Benedict XV. The last Pope of that name, who died in 1758, was also Archbishop of Bologna. But the world will see an appropriateness in the selection in view of the conditions surrounding the beginning of his service in the Vatican chair. The pontificates of nearly all the Benedictines have been tempestuous. The very first one was troubled by plagues and famines and Lombard attacks. Some of them were great reformers, but were resisted in the exercise of their authority. Some were assassinated by rivals, some were exiled, some were murdered. War's horrors were familiar to very many of them.

Even Benedict XIV, the scholar, the defender of the Indians of Brazil and Paraguay against cruelties, the author, whose works fill 12 quarto volumes, was not elected until after a struggle in the conclave that continued for months.

dams and cascades, bathing pools and fishing holes, and made a thing of beauty, especially in Forest Park.

A clear, running stream, bordered with aquatic growths, supplied with fish, flowing through a city, is an asset to be desired. London has three such streams—the Wandle, in which Isaac Walton fished, the River Lee and the New River. The Thames, of course, is not in the comparison.

The reclamation of the Des Peres would be difficult, but well worth while.

POPE BENEDICT XV.

The life of the new Pope, Giacomo Della Chiesa, is in sharp contrast at many points with that of his lamented predecessor.

Most of the years of the latter were occupied as a shepherd of flocks. He was for 17 years a contented rural parish priest. His interest in his work caused him several times to reject episcopal honors and he was 49 when the Bishopric of Mantua was forced on him, becoming a Cardinal and Patriarch of Venice nine years later.

Very soon after his ordination he entered the papal diplomatic service and a few years later we find him filling minor offices in the great bureaus and departments of the Vatican at Rome. RENUNCIATION.

DO not read the baseball scores—it is enough that we are whipped;

Nor am I one who sadly ponders upon the problem of what slipped.

I only know that pastime sinned.

My youth's enthusiasm once,

And left me permanently striped.

Of interest in baseball stunts.

I gave my all of cheer and hope. Odabodkinis, I was a dunce!

FOLLOWING teams which could not beat

An armadillo up a hill,

But in my beautiful conceit

I rooted as a rooster will.

I never shant forget how still

I kept at last, we having blown,

Nor at the windup of the mill,

What rage and sorrow were my own.

Alas! for what I might have known.

THE READERS' WAR GUIDE.

Yesterday was a comparatively quiet day on our front page, thanks to the Pope, who occupied the illustrations on the center panel. However, everybody else on the page took advantage of this peaceful visitation to prepare for a not too far away day.

Nothing could be more fitting than the picture of a soldier as calves' foot type which appears on the front page now. They have the two-column position at the left hand side of the page. It remains to be seen whether the Czar has a front page army. It has won some big victories on the second page, but those are not taken very seriously anywhere else in the paper.

The Russians are making great claims for their army, and want recognition. They are getting it too fast. If that is all they get, it will surprise us greatly.

Our advertisers take advantage of the full in the fighting and moved up on the fourth page, where they have a good view of what is going on. They say it is quiet in the back of the paper. The Austrians who enter the want ads after the battle of Lemberg have remained on the third page, and it is probable that they will cross over to page 2 and engage the Russians again some time today. The Austrians have been on and off that page until they have worn the paper thin where they cross; but they stick to their knitting. Our observation is that they are badly led. We notice that in crossing from the third page to the second they spread out in a thin line the whole second page at once.

This puts the Russians on that page, who have nowhere else to go. To the left of the Russian is a hole is somewhat of a bear. If the Austrians would form in a line a half page deep and cross at the top, leaving the Russians room to get out at the bottom, they could both revolve around those two pages without anybody getting very badly hurt. We notice that the Germans stick pretty close to their two-column formation. It seems very effective. If they can get the center illustration on their left, to serve as a buffer, they can go up the front page every time.

A good many people participated in firing the shot that was heard around the world, but it remained for the young man who shot the Archduke of Austria to fire the shot that was heard all over the top of the page. In our opinion, it is the clutter of handset type at the top of the page that is keeping the Germans out of Paris.

to the Allies, we don't think a great deal of their tactics. Their favorite plan seems to be to occupy one of the page-wide lines at the top of the page, and wait there for the Germans to come up the two columns at the right. As soon as the Germans appear, the Allies shoot at them and then beat it, leaving their line pied all over the top of the page. In our opinion, it is the clutter of handset type at the top of the page that is keeping the Germans out of Paris.

CELEBRITY IN FIGHTING.

From the Philadelphia Record.

The German generals practice what the military authorities preach, that celerity is of the utmost importance.

Our own considerate commanders in the resuming the fighting. If they had had the energy of the German generals the war would not have lasted six months.

Instead of lasting four years. Irrespec-

CLEANSING.

G. E. A.—You might cover white wings with a crease, wash them in warm water and French chalk, allowing it to dry on for a day, then brush off. Sometimes an application of common starch mixed with water will do the trick.

HEALTH HINTS.

MOLO.—The "Jumping of muscles" is probably not caused by wax in the ear, try to forget them. See Answers Aug. 27.

GOAT.—We don't know that goat milk is in demand in St. Louis among physicians and dentists, but it is used in certain cases. Ask what it brings per quart. As to whether the milk from a herd of a dozen milch goats is better than that from a herd of 100, we don't know. Buffalo says that it is well known that goat's milk is richer, more nutritious and more easily digested than cow's milk. Goat's milk is good for children and invalids. It is stated by the most eminent physicians to be unsurpassed.

SUFFERER.—Florida, Colorado and California have been recommended for asthma. Remedies: Soak blotting or tissue paper in very strong saltpeter water. Dry and burn it in the room.

W. F.—It is often only a nervous state of mind. Someone says this is a cure: Two large or three small bottles of milk. Throw the water away. If you boil fast they will burst. When a little cooled (so you don't burn the skin) pour it all in the bottle. Hold it inside with one pint of pure honey two minutes. Take at first a teaspoonful every 15 minutes and as soon as you feel better every half hour. A third remedy: Put one ounce iodide of potassium in one pint water and take one teaspoon three times a day for a month and afterwards once at night.

The Whirlwind of Fate

The Story of a Story Condemned for Want of Action, but Not Before It Lives Up Strongly to Its Too-Aptly Chosen Title.

By Gilbert Hink.

"The Great Refusal," by Elizabeth Barratt Browning, had just been refused. "The Decline of Ephesus," by Harriet Beecher Stowe, had been declined, and "The Doom of David," by Eliza Emma Potter, was rejected.

The chief selector of the Monitor Magazine was earning his salary and exercising his infallible judgment in the choice of stories. He accepted every two hundred and sixteenth offering.

He opened the two hundred and fifteenth manuscript at peace with the world and with the love of mankind in his heart. Perhaps if this two hundred and fifteenth manuscript had the semblance of merit he would accept it instead of the two hundred and sixteenth, thus proving that merit alone influenced his choice of current fiction for the readers—a million copies monthly—of the Monitor.

He half promised himself that he would accept the two hundred and fifteenth story just to prove that the milk of human kindness had not been chalked up as missing in his breast. He opened the long envelope with a thrust of an old brass column rule, which had outlined its usefulness in the composing-room:

The rejector drew forth the old folded manuscript and read in the upper right-hand corner of the first page (as per instructions in notes of regret from many magazines), the title of the story, the number of words and the name of the writer:

"The Whirlwind of Fate—3500 words—Dawson Folkes Hermonst."

The rejector began reading the open manuscript.

Away Go the Pages.

Just then a gentle breeze, the kind that makes paper-sheets an absolute necessity in 30-story buildings, struck the opening pages of "The Whirlwind of Fate" and wafted them gently out of the neatly manured finger of the rejector, through the open window and out into the open air, beyond the editorial rooms of the Monitor Magazine.

"Ah, well, perhaps it's best," sighed the rejector, tossing the two hundred and sixteenth manuscript in with the sheep and what was left of No. 215 in with the myriad of goats.

"Perhaps that whiff of wind kept me from warping my literary judgment," facetiously remarked the rejector to himself as he began counting out the next 216 manuscripts.

But the story does not end here. The opening page of "The Whirlwind young marksman saw, drifting down from the soft skies, a fluttering square of white. He hurriedly rammed a cartridge into the new rifle and fired at the fast-descending page.

The press said:

Martha McDonald, a domestic employed in the household of Dr. F. G. Schuyler, was shot by some unknown person yesterday morning. The bullet, from a small target rifle, entered the woman's left cheek, causing a very serious wound. The police, called to investigate, advance the theory that she was the victim of the accidental discharge of a rifle in that immediate neighborhood. The woman was taken to the White Sister's Hospital for treatment.

The Rejected Finds the Page.

THE chief rejector of the Monitor Magazine, tired by the arduous task of selecting short stories at the ratio of 215 to 1, walked slowly homeward at the close of a pleasant day.

At the edge of a carefully attended lawn the toe of his shoe brushed forth a page of white. Through curiosity he picked up the square that had dared deface the shining surface of his shoe.

"The opening page of the ill-fated, gallant two hundred and sixteenth," exclaimed the rejector. "Well, how in the world did that get away out here?"

And then he read the title half aloud:

"The Whirlwind of Fate."

"What a hackneyed theme," he commented, idly.

Then, as if his curiosity had been piqued by the odd rescue of the missing page, he read the opening sentence:

This is a story of peace; of the quietude of country lanes and rural scenes where not a breath of vagrant wind shall come to mar the peaceful serenity of the day.

"Not enough action in the story—was the condemnation of the critic.

What to Eat in Place of Meat

LET US assume that the dietary standard advocated by recent physiologists and physiological committees is correct, and that the adult requires about three-fourths of an ounce of protein daily. Confusion arises in the housekeeper's mind right here, because it is natural that she should think that if protein is represented by lean of meat, eggs, cheese, fish and milk, only three-fourths of an ounce of any one of these things needs to be eaten.

This is not so, because it requires considerable quantities of certain foods to yield that amount of protein. It should be plain that a quart of milk weighing a little over two pounds with its large proportion of water, could not yield anywhere near as much protein to the pound as cheese, with its small proportion of water. Milk, although a perfect food, is not a concentrated food; while nuts are not a perfect but a most concentrated form of nourishment.

Meat (this is a fair average) contains some 18 per cent of protein, hence three-fourths of a pound will be needed to yield three-fourths of an ounce. It is this arithmetical calculation which staggers the housewife, wholly unaccustomed to computing any figures but those needed to supply the family with sufficient meat and potato to satisfy their demands or appetites.—Woman's World.

SOUTH AMERICAN BUSINESS ALMOST RUINED BY THE WAR

Export Houses Closed and Ships Are Idle at Pacific End of Panama Canal.

PANAMA, Sept. 4.—Business in all cities as far south as Antofagasta, Chile, is reported to be virtually at a standstill and a number of the largest important export houses are said to have ceased doing business, while they await a resumption of better conditions.

The proclamation of a partial moratorium at Lima, Peru, permits banks to refuse payments in excess of five per cent of their deposits weekly, while the Peruvian Government has ordered the stoppage of the exportation of gold.

Conditions at Guayaquil and other Ecuadorian ports, as well as ports in Colombia, are believed to be equally bad, judging from reports received from these localities.

Ships are clearing from Balboa, the Pacific end of the Panama Canal, with little cargo and a few passengers and several are being laid up at Balboa pending better traffic conditions.

The business situation in Central America is believed here to be little better than on the Pacific Coast of South America.

Cousins at New York Hold Meeting to

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—"North Americans do not, and cannot appreciate the terrible predicament the South American republics are in as the result of the European conflict. There has been a complete paralysis of trade in all the republics, and the paralysis extends even to foodstuffs. Credit has been completely wiped out; merchants are unable to place orders, as all heretofore has been done with European firms."

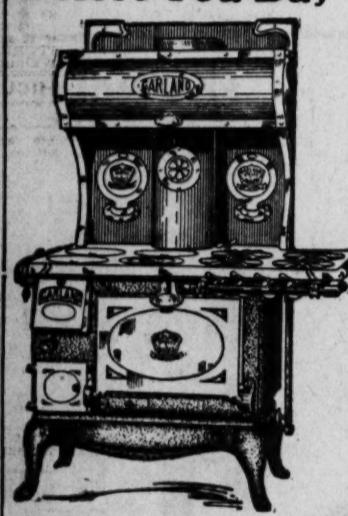

Conditions in Latin America were thus summarized last night at a conference of the Consular representatives in this city of all the Latin-American republics.

The only possible relief for these conditions, according to the sentiment expressed at the meeting, lies in extension of credit by United States firms.

"These South American countries," said Browne Willis of Costa Rica, secretary of the meeting, "now naturally turn to the United States as a base of supply, but they find themselves absolutely devoid of a means to accomplish their purpose."

This, Willis stated, is due to two causes. The American manufacturer is completely unprepared to meet the sudden demand now forced upon him and is unable to extend facilities and credit. The failure of European countries to absorb their usual quota of Spanish-American products cannot be offset by diverting these products to the United States, because the United States cannot be expected to absorb the whole Spanish-American output.

STEEL WORKERS CHARGE THEY PAID FOREMAN FOR JOB

Granite City Prosecutor and Illinois Labor Commissioner Start an Investigation.

The prosecuting authorities of Granite City and the State Labor Commissioner of Illinois are investigating complaints that certain foremen of the American Steel Foundry Co. have extorted sums of money from laborers and mill workers for giving them or permitting them to hold jobs in the plant.

City Attorney Steel of Granite City told the Post-Dispatch reporter today that his investigation showed that during the last five weeks each thousand dollars had been paid by the foremen of the plant. Steel laid the results of his investigations before the Attorney-General of Illinois and was advised by him to take up the matter with the State Labor Commissioner, whom he has done.

An Illinois statute makes it unlawful for the foreman or superintendent of any factory to exact money from employees for giving them positions or permitting them to hold them.

The system of extorting money from laborers in the foundry was exposed, according to Steel, when an Armenian named Arwegegan was arrested on a charge of forging the name of another laborer on a pay check. Arwegegan was accused of forgery. He explained that he forged the name of his fellow employee to a check to get even, as he had been compelled to pay a foreman for his job.

Investigation Begun.

Policeman Peter Sehoyan, an Armenian, was instructed by the Granite City officials to investigate Arwegegan's complaint. Sehoyan went into the foundry and talked with many of his countrymen. He took 20 of them before City Attorney Steel and they made affidavits that they had paid their foremen of the departments in which they were employed for giving them jobs.

Steel said that the facts had been laid before the Deputy Labor Commissioner in East St. Louis, and that he expected warrants would be issued against several foremen within the next few days.

The superintendent of the factory, Andrew Walcher, said he had no knowledge that the foremen had extorted money from the laborers, but if the complaints could be verified, he would immediately discharge all the foremen implicated.

The American Steel Foundry Co. is one of the branches of the Steel Trust, and employs thousands of men, when operating at its maximum capacity. Most of the men are Armenians, Rumanians and other Southern European nationalities.

Fours Affidavits.

William Roach, State Labor Commissioner's office in East St. Louis, having charge of the Free Employment Bureau, said that Sehoyan had submitted four affidavits to him, which purported to show that the men who made them had paid an aggregate of $100 to certain persons in the foundry.

Roach said he transmitted the affidavits to R. J. Knight in Chicago, chief inspector of private employment agencies, and expected to receive instruction from him in a few days as to how to proceed. The offense complained of against the foundry foremen, Roach said, would be punishable under the law prohibiting the operation of a private employment agency without a license. The law fixes the fine at $50 to $200, Roach said.

Roach declared that it was a common matter for a laborer or mill worker to pay for the privilege of getting a steady job. He said that a thorough investigation ought to be made of the system in view thereof and that if Knight gave him instructions to proceed he would ask for warrants against the foremen who are alleged to have extorted money from the employees.

NAVAL OFFICER WHO DISAPPEARED PRONOUNCED DEAD

Lieut.-Commander Keating Vanished While Under Charges at Vera Cruz.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Lieut.-Commander Arthur Barnes Keating, who disappeared from the United States battleship Arkansas at Vera Cruz, Mexico, while under charges, has been officially recorded as "drowned."

Keating was placed under arrest Aug. 4 by his commanding officer, Capt. Roy C. Smith, after reports had been received charging Keating with conduct unbecoming an officer. He was held in quarters, pending the convening of the court-martial, before which he was to be tried.

Sometime on Aug. 5 or 6, the report of the investigation states, it is not known which, Keating vanished. He could not be found in Vera Cruz or Mexico City. After walking several days a court of inquiry sat and found that Keating had come to his death by drowning. This report was received at the Navy Department and accepted.

Lieutenant Commander Keating was charged with committing the same offense which caused the resignation of Rear-Admiral Edward H. Barry in January, 1911. Several enlisted men in the navy were involved in the case of Keating.

Keating, born in Maryland, July 14, 1879, was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1900. He was in the second day's fighting at Vera Cruz. For his services then, Rear-Admiral Fletcher commanded him.

The Jarr Family

By ROY L. McCARDELL.

Why Shouldn't Clara Win the Cup; Didn't Her Husband Furnish It?

THE orchestra at Cheese Hill Inn consisted of an energetic quartet of syncopated Senegambians, running a scale in color from light yellow to deepest black, and their sound sequences shaded the same, the lightest muttato having the little banjo and the coal black little negro working, thumping, jingling, tom-tomming, including a drum beaten with a pedal, cymbals, triangles, tambourines, wooden clappers, sleigh bells, whistles, squawkers and many other terrifying devices such as deacon the ear, astonish the mind, and give rhythmic accent to the cubist cacophony of modern dance music.

The "music" played and the guests on the screened verandas of the Cheese Hill Inn left their tables to "mooch," "fox-trot" and otherwise dispense themselves to the pulsing din in all the movements that nowadays edify the educated and seem a solace to the sensible.

Mr. Jarr, with his set corn burning, was put through a course of preliminary training by his wife, and his prospective cup contest partner, Mrs. Clara Mudridge-Smith, until he was ready to drop with exhaustion.

He had several breathing spaces when the medium-shaded colored player of the bass banjo "obliged" with several popular songs that no modern young girl would have permitted her mother to listen to.

In company with many of the pleased listeners, Mr. Jarr showered all his loose change at the singer. Not that he approved of the double meaning and single purpose of the songs, but because it was considered an agreeable pickings of this sort are the spoils of the spectators, it is thought, though doubtless the management, with an eye out for everything and a hand ready to grasp the most paltry coins that can be cadged from every source in an establishment of this sort, only permits the performers to have a percentage.

Supervised by "the captain," or head waiter, who hovered over them like a worshiper, for was it not a "wine party?" the waiters kept forcing the high-priced wine upon the party. D' old man Smith, who was to pay the "check," look away a moment, the bottle then being pried would be promptly seized and deftly inverted in the ice cooler. Any question that it had only been half instead of entirely emptied could be proved to the way of the waiter's declaration by the time it was lifted out from its neck downward.

Mr. Jarr didn't care. Mrs. Mudridge-Smith didn't care. Nor, she rejoiced to demonstrate to her former fiancee, Ferdinand Fluff, still a floorwalker, who was with "a cheap bunch" at another table—regaling shamefacedly on a serving of soft drinks, beer and sandwiches—that she had married a man who could waste any amount of money at her bidding. Mrs. Jarr, too, felt the natural pride in being with persons who, as she had said, "did the thing in style."

Old man Smith groaned as he realized what the bill would be. But what else is a rich old husband good for except to groan and pay?

And now Mr. Jarr's boss had got the cup, which he had brought secretly in the handbag, conveyed to the head waiter by the chauffeur, also a $10 bill in an envelope, and the head waiter made the announcement:

"Ladies and gentlemen!"

"The event of the evening, the contest for the Cheese Hill Inn Special Prize, a beautiful, genuine quadruped, loving cup of genuine Etruscan design, 18 inches in height, with ebony base, will now begin."

"This contest is open to all amateur and nonprofessional dancers among the guests of the Cheese Hill Inn present tonight. Possessives all shall be barred and all professionals will be ruled off! There will be a mixed maxixe and fox-trot. Let her go, Professor!"

The "professor" gave the piano a terrific thump, the ebony man-spider at the drums hit all his horrendous instruments a crashing bang at the same time, and Mr. Jarr was led out like a lamb to the slaughter by Mrs. Clara Mudridge-Smith, who was determined to win another big or perish in the attempt.

A Censored Poem

"Won't you buy a ticket and get in the charity kiss line?"
No, thanks; I prefer to sip my nectar from an individual drinking cup."

But just at this time an interruption occurred.

The interruption was caused by a noisy party of men and women, led by a handsome, pink-faced man who wore large diamond buttons in his costly light blue silk outing shirt.

Immediately the waiters divided their allegiance, half of them swarmed round the newcomers.

The captain of the waiters had them seated near the Jarr-Smith party and the pink-faced man began to bellow for a couple of quarts of REAL wine!"

At this point one of the waiters passed with a wine cooler containing a bottle of champagne for Mr. Jarr and his friends. The pink-faced man halted the waiter, and with a fat, white hand lifted cut the bottle of champagne from the neck.

"Take that stuff away!" he roared.

"Bring these people a quart of Perfect Wine!" they look like ladies and gentlemen!"

"What's wrong with this kind?" asked Mr. Smith apprehensively. "We've been paying eight dollars a bottle for it!"

"Would I see you poisoned before my eyes?" asked the pink-faced man.

"Pink Seal, bah! I know the stuff. It's made fresh every hour of chemicals in the east side factory. I represent Perfect Brut—The Wine of Kings and The King of Wines! Take this stuff and throw it out!"

"Oh, George, don't talk shop," cried a trim figura with golden hair.

"We'll have to let Mr. Smith's friend, Ferdinand Fluff, still a floorwalker, who was with 'a cheap bunch' at another table—regaling shamefacedly on a serving of soft drinks, beer and sandwiches—that she had married a man who could waste any amount of money at her bidding. BUT—SHE CHANGED HER MIND

Too Regular.

NOT long ago a worthy woman of an Iowa town, who had lost three husbands, coyly admitted her intention to marry a fourth.

"Congratulations, Mary, congratulations!" cried a friend one day as she burst in upon the prospective bride.

The latter sighed. Oh, the weddings are all very well," said she, "but what I do object to are the funerals."

Not the Friday Odor.

OUR contributor's small friend, little Rollo, aged 5, had always observed that fish was the big dish at his home on Friday. And he had observed that the rule held in the neighboring households.

Recently little Rollo was sent out to visit his grandma in the country.

And after a day or two he missed something.

"Grandma," said he, "ain't it ever Friday in the country?"

"What a question!" she laughed. Of course it is. Today is Friday, d'you know?"

"Well," said Rollo. "It don't smell like Friday."—Atlanta Journal.

From Bad to Worse.

CHAIRMAN (at concert): Ladies and gentlemen, Miss Discordant will now sing "Only Once More."

SARCASTIC CRITIC: Thank goodness for that.

Chairman (coming forward again): Ladies and gentlemen, instead of singing "Only Once More," Miss Discordant will sing "For Ever and Ever."

COLLAPSE OF CRITIC.

Quarrel No. 1.

CONFUSED IT ALL, the bridegroom muttered angrily, as he and his bride were returning from a 10-day honeymoon trip, "why do people stare at us so?"

"Probably wondering, just as we are why we married each other," replied the bride.

Calling His Bluff.

IT is my highest wish," said he very fervently, "to make your life happy forever."

"Well, then," replied the dear girl, "let us be friends once more—and never propose to me again."

His Start.

"Bought a second-hand fire escape cheap today."

"What did you want with that?"

"Thought, maybe, I might have money enough some day to build a house to fit it."

Not Good at That.

"He is as good as his word."

"Yes, but he uses such shocking bad language."

Most people hold their opinions to be self-evident truths.

There, I think that will give the business a little boost!

Hits From Sharp Wits

Men who talk the most very often say the least.

It is better to make a fool of yourself than to let someone else do it.

Advice that is freely given is usually of the poorest quality.—Albany Journal.

The face behind it is often as plain as the nose on a man's face.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

You should breathe easy hereafter. An authority has discovered that a man betrays the fact when he tells a lie by his breathing.

"Natural science is a distinct form of thought." Perhaps it is as difficult for a man to think naturally as for a woman to act naturally.—Florida Times-Union.

Why should a man go to a phonologist to find out pleasant things about himself which he can't believe any disagreeable things he already knows?—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Out in Nebraska there is a man who is more than 120 years old. We are not sure that he tries to account for this remarkable multiplicity of years—he has just lived, but probably he would have been dead 50 years ago had he tried to follow any prescribed list of "don'ts."—Toledo Blade.

A Believer.

"Do you believe in the minimum wage for girls?"

"Sure! I pay it."

Newlyweds always labor for a short time under the delusion that their lives will be so different.—Albany Journal.

"Woman will be famed as well as men," she ejaculated.

"Yes," responded he, "for untold ages."

In 1850 only one woman worked for wages to every 10 men; now the ratio is one woman to four men.
